To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to you with deep concern regarding the ongoing human rights crisis unfolding in the Islamic Republic of Iran. Over the past weeks, nationwide protests—initially sparked by economic hardship—have been met with an increasingly violent crackdown by Iranian security forces. Reports from credible human rights organizations indicate that hundreds of protesters have been killed and thousands more arbitrarily detained as authorities use lethal force, metal pellets, and other excessive tactics against largely peaceful demonstrators.

Numerous independent reports highlight serious violations of international human rights standards, including:

- Unlawful use of lethal force against civilians, including young people and minors.
- Mass arbitrary arrests and disappearances of protesters, activists, and journalists.
- Violent dispersal tactics and the blocking of medical access to injured individuals.
- Widespread efforts to suppress information through internet and communication blackouts.

These actions raise grave concerns about Iran's compliance with international human rights obligations, particularly the rights to life, freedom of expression, peaceful assembly, and due process.

Given the severity of these violations and the documented harm to peaceful civilians, I respectfully urge [government/institution name] to take the following actions:

1. Publicly condemn the unlawful killings and excessive use of force against peaceful protesters in Iran.
2. Support independent investigations into reported human rights abuses, potentially through international mechanisms such as the United Nations Human Rights Council.
3. Consider targeted diplomatic measures or sanctions against individuals and institutions credibly implicated in these abuses.
4. Call on Iranian authorities to immediately halt violent repression and release those detained for exercising fundamental rights.

Upholding human rights worldwide requires prompt and decisive action, especially when civilians are threatened for exercising their basic freedoms. I hope your office will use its influence to advocate for accountability, protection of human rights, and the preservation of human dignity for all people in Iran.

Thank you for your time and attention to this urgent matter.

Sincerely,
